Wildlife

Animal Control aims to help humans and wild animals coexist. On these pages you will find information on bobcats, coyotes, snakes, and skunks, what to do if you encounter them, and related safety information.

Rogers Wildlife Rehabilitation

Rogers Wildlife Rehabilitation is a nonprofit organization that assists with the rehabilitation of sick or injured bird or fowl from all around the metroplex.

If you spot an injured bird or fowl, please contact Animal Services. We will transport the animal in distress to Rogers Wildlife Rehabilitation for you.

The facility provides tours to the public and is a great place to see exotic bird types such as pelicans, peacocks, owls, and hawks. Times may vary, so always call in advance to see hours of availability.

The organization runs on volunteers and relies on donations. If you would like to offer your time or resources, or have questions, please see the contact information below.

Rogers Wildlife Rehabilitation
1430 E Cleveland St.
Hutchins, TX 75141
(972) 225-4000